

UNINVITED GUESTS—The residents of 417 State Street found themselves hosts to unexpected company around midnight on Sunday when an automobile driven by a 15-year-old juvenile rammed into their home, uprooting two large ligustrums in its path and damaging a neighbor's car. No charges had been filed as of Wednesday. (Echo staff photo by Janet McQueen)

Car crashes into house, tenants forced to move

BY DENA BISNETTE
George and Colleen Brewer had left their living room about two minutes before they heard a car crash through the corner of their rented home at 417 State Street in Bay St. Louis Sunday night.

On Monday, they were busy contacting relatives to let them know that they were unexpectedly moving.

"It was just like an explosion," Colleen Brewer said as she described the crash. "Just the initial impact—we thought it lasted forever."

Brewer said she and her husband had been watching television only a few minutes before and had just gone into the bedroom. After running back to the living room and seeing part of a car sticking through the paneling, they ran outside to see what was happening.

According to an incident report filed by Bay St. Louis Police Officer Gus Aime, a 15-year-old juvenile was attempting to back the car down State Street in the direction of Dunbar Avenue and hit the accelerator rather than the brake. The police were called at 11:55 p.m., a few minutes after the accident itself.

Brewer, whose landlord Robert Kane of John McDonald Real Estate has provided her with a new address, said she first saw the young driver kneeling in the street and screaming, "Oh my God, I'm going to die."

Neither the girl who was driving nor her male passenger, also a juvenile, were reported injured.

Franckiewicz successes given in council report

BY D.C. HARVILL
Victor Franckiewicz Jr. gave his swan song as mayor of Bay St. Louis Tuesday night with his final report to the city council.

Franckiewicz said his administration began with the statement, "There will be four years of new attitudes—as change is long overdue; and we will be seeking new standards of excellence."

Franckiewicz announced earlier this year that he would not seek re-election. On July 1, he will turn the office over to Mayor-Elect Edward A. Favre.

The lame-duck mayor credited the city's employees for the accomplishments made during his administration.

"While I am personally proud of the specific accomplishments... I am more proud of the employees who did the work. From the department head level to the men 'in the trenches,' this city's employees are dedicated, capable and effective. An honest account of these four years must recognize them for a job well done.... It is a privilege to have worked with them."

Franckiewicz said the administration operated on a set of principles which constituted a "clean break from past policies."

According to Franckiewicz, major achievements include:

—Completion of more drainage improvements than in the past eight terms.

—The most streets paved since 1968.

—The first increase in the

Massage law amended

BY D.C. HARVILL

It now will be easier for those certified to administer therapeutic massages to ply their trade in Bay St. Louis.

The city council voted Tuesday night to amend an existing ordinance which regulated massage operations, simplifying the licensing requirements for those certified to give massages, while still providing a deterrent to sex-related operation disguised as massage parlors.

Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. recommended that 14 changes be made to the ordinance, passed in 1982. The council, however, approved only four amendments.

Two of the changes bring the city's massage parlor license policy into alignment with the state's new privilege law passed in 1988.

Under the original ordinance, a massage therapist had to purchase from the city a one-year, $500 permit that expired on October 1 regardless of when issued.

With the amendments, the massage therapist will only have to pay $20 for a license which will be effective for one year from the date of issuance.

A third amendment allows for the administration of massages in the home of the party receiving the massage.

"There are many elderly receive massages in their homes as do people recovering from broken limbs and other debilitations. This change allows them to do so," Franckiewicz said.

The fourth amendment requires that the therapist be certified by a widely accepted professional organization that operates in at least two states, including Mississippi.

The massagist also is required to carry $300,000 in liability insurance.

"This provision removes from the city the roll of judging who is qualified to administer massages, a judgement it doesn't have the expertise to make," Franckiewicz said.

It also helps remove the possibility of the city being held liable in the event someone is injured while receiving a massage, he said.

Councilman John Wilkerson said, before making the motion to amend the ordinance, "I would like to see the ordinance rescinded, but not until I see a new one on the table first."

Franckiewicz said he believed the council intended for the amended ordinance to be an interim version until a new one could be written.

Impact of test site told to community leaders

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Roy Estess, director of the John C. Stennis Space Center addressed a group of state, county, city and community leaders on the impact of the facility located in Hancock County.

Estess reported employment at the test facility was 5,348 as of January, 1989 and of that number 19 percent reside in Hancock County.

The total spent on operations for fiscal year ending September 1988 was $439 million which included $19 million for propellants from Michoud.

The Stennis impact on a 50-mile radius from an economist's viewpoint would be: if the facility would not have been in operation in 1988, considering both direct and indirect effects, a very conservative estimate of reduction in employment for the local area would be 19,205 jobs.

A similar conservative estimate indicates that personal income would have been reduced by more than $469.7 million.

It is estimated that the Stennis Space Center has a tax revenue impact on local government revenues of $24 million.

Employment at the facility should remain steady if the Mississippi Ammo plant remains in production, Estess reported.

Estess emphasized the importance of continued excellence in education required for the future.

A breakdown in a civil education summary show the site's employees with a master's degree/doctorate are 23 percent, bachelor degree 37 percent, associate degree/some college 25 percent and high school education 15 percent.

Lt. Col. Stephen Zakrewski, commander of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant was among the site's division leaders to address the community leaders. See related story.

Oge' declines job renewal

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District is now without a superintendent of education.

In a letter read to the school board by Board President Charles Benvenuti Monday night, Dr. Roger Oge, declined an extension of his contract.

The board voted unanimously to accept his resignation. Oge did not attend the meeting.

In the letter, read by Board President Charles Benvenuti, Oge thanked the board for the opportunity to serve the school district the past three years and for offering him the contract extension. The renewal was to be for one year.

"However, with great regret,

I must inform you that for personal reasons I cannot accept the offer," the letter said.

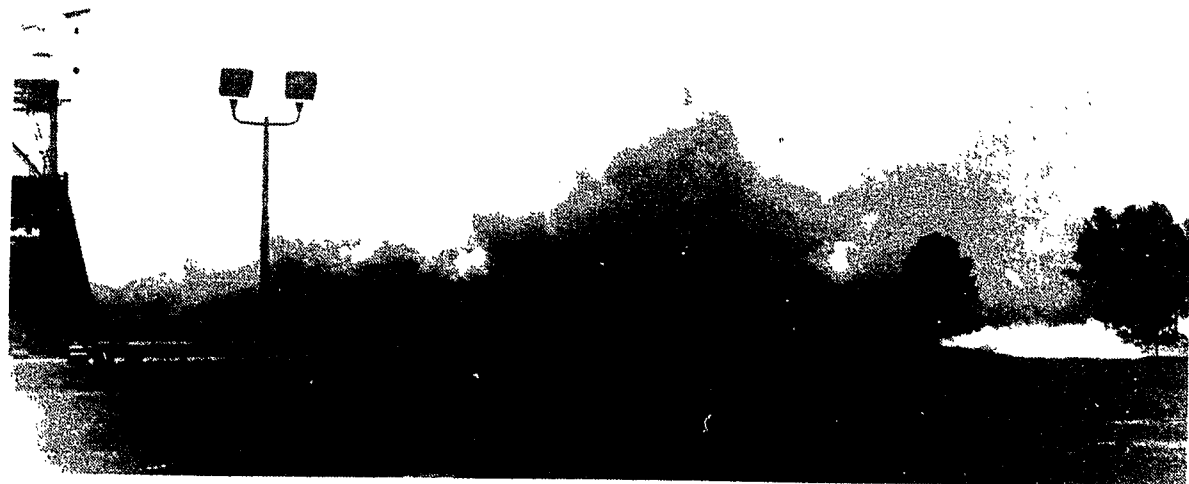

Oge cited hard work all parties involved in the educational process for helping the system accomplish "many improvements" during his three year tenure.

"I have worked hard and made my share of mistakes and my share of progress," the letter stated.

In January, the board agreed to renew Oge's contract, with one dissenting vote. The contract, however, was not final because a salary had not been agreed upon, according to Benvenuti.

During Oge's term as super-

WENDELL LANGLEY

Wendell Marion Langley, 75, of Bay St. Louis died Monday, June 19, 1989, in Bay St. Louis.

The body was sent from Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis to Edmonds Funeral Home, Winnfield, La., for services and burial.

KATIE SAUCIER

Funeral services will be 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church for Katie Saucier, 89, of 752 Washington St., Bay St. Louis.

The Rev. Peter Sylvester will officiate.

Visitation will begin one hour prior to service at the church. Burial will follow at St. Stephens Cemetery in DeLisle.

Mrs. Saucier died Tuesday, June 20, 1989, in Bay St. Louis. She was a native of DeLisle and a long-time resident of Bay St. Louis. She was a homemaker, a member of St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church and Senior Citizens.

Survivors include her son, Sidney Saucier of Bay St. Louis; her daughter, Thelma Smith of Jackson; three sisters, Agnes Walter of Litchfield, La., Eva Johnson of New Orleans, La., and Mayola Lewis of Bay St. Louis; 10 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, and other relatives.

Baylous Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

intendent, many improvements were made including an extensive building program, an approximately 300 percent increase in the amount of scholarships received by graduating seniors, an openness and encouragement of public participation, the offering of junior college courses in the high school and in homes.

Implementation of the STAR satellite education system and a positive referral program in which students are given positive reinforcement for accomplishments were also cited.

"It was a total surprise. We didn't expect it. Mr. Benvenuti called about an hour before (the meeting) and told us he had the letter, but that was the first we knew of it," said Linda Penrose of Waveland, the member who voted against renewing Oge's contract.

Penrose said there had been no pressure on Oge' to resign, to her knowledge.

Other board members declined or were unavailable for comment.

According to Benvenuti, due to the unexpected nature of the announcement, the board has made no plan for finding Oge's replacement.

Bay man charged in capital murder

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Bay St. Louis man has been arrested in the Sept. 17, 1988, capital murder of 55-year-old Monica White of Long Beach.

Long Beach Police Chief K.M. Pell said Lawrence Royce Duvall, 25, of 317 St. Charles St., Bay St. Louis, was arrested late Friday after he was involved in a one-vehicle traffic accident that left him with minor injuries.

Pell said his department had a recently issued indictment against Duvall, but had not yet picked him up.

He said the man would have been arrested soon.

"It wasn't like he was running from us, because we knew where he was. When this happened, we didn't have to go get him," the chief said.

After being taken to a hospital for treatment of his injuries, Duvall was jailed in Harrison County without bond.

Capital murder charges are made when a murder occurs during commission of another crime.

In the White slaying, Pell said, the other crimes involved were robbery and rape.

The other two men charged in the crime were arrested in Florida about a month after White was killed. The woman had been stabbed, her throat had been slashed and a pillow had been held over her face until she suffocated, Harrison County Coroner Ed Little said.

The two men are Timothy G. White, 28, of Gulfport, who is not related to the victim, and Sean M. Godley, 18, of Pass Christian.

Medicaid services, field offices to expand July 1

Fifteen new field offices to help Mississippians apply for an expanded Medicaid program will open on July 1, bringing to 24 the number of sign-up centers statewide.

Beginning July 1, Medicaid will be extended to the following groups:

- * About 30,000 aged, blind and disabled persons.
- * Approximately 20,000 children up to age five.
- * Certain disabled children up to age 18 living at home.

The number of hospital days covered by Medicaid will increase July 1 from 15 to a total of 30 for persons over the age of 21.

"By creating these new sign-up centers, we hope to reach every Mississippian who qualified for Medicaid so that they can receive the health care benefits to which they are entitled," Gov. Mabus said.

"The more offices we have the better we can reach those who need care the most but have trouble getting it—children, the elderly and pregnant women," the governor said.

To find the closest location to apply for Medicaid, call the state Medicaid office at 1-800-421-2408 or the Governor's Service Line at 1-800-222-7622.

Crash

Brewer said in retrospect, she believed the girl was reacting to fear.

Somehow, she had gotten the car into such a position that the front end had hit the house, Brewer stated.

She said her husband later told her he had heard screeching tires just before the crash.

"It was like, 'Oh my God!' We knew it was hitting but we didn't know where to run. We didn't know which way it was coming from," Brewer added.

She said the driver told her she had been getting a tape from a friend in the neighborhood and had decided to try to back the car out of State Street.

The male passenger in the vehicle offered to move the car but was stopped from doing so until police officers arrived on the scene.

"There were policemen everywhere. They didn't ask us a lot of questions but they came into the kitchen and talked a lot to this girl before her parents came and picked her up," Brewer said, explaining that it was almost 1:30 a.m. before everyone left.

"I was in a state of shock. All the shrubs were down and stuff was everywhere. I know after they moved the car bricks started falling down again."

Also damaged was a Volkswagen Scirocco parked between 217 and 219 State Street. Brewer said some of the debris from the house had fallen on the car.

Preliminary damage estimates indicate about $750 to the car and between $3,000 to $8,000 to the house.

She and her husband stayed in the house for the remainder of Sunday night, and Monday placed plastic over the hole, but realized they could not remain there.

"The corner was open and the bugs were coming in and all," she said.

They were also concerned about the possibility that bricks under the roof might come loose and the corner of the house become more dangerous than it already was.

Kane, who had come to the scene of the accident after they had called him, returned and arranged for the Brewers to move to another home.

Only a couple of neighbors were aware of what had happened when she spoke with them later that morning, Brewer added. One was the person who owned the damaged Volkswagen. Another said she thought the noise was thunder and was waiting for the rain to start.

Although the incident report stated that the 15-year-old driver had no license, no charges were made Sunday night. Bay Police Detective Tom Burleson said the matter is being turned over to the department's accident scene specialist, David Selier, for further investigation.

city's water supply since 1962.

—Renovation and repair of City Hall, the Valena C. Jones Complex, housing the fire and police departments, Senior Citizens and RSVP.

—Radical improvements in the professional standards for the police and fire departments.

—An improvement in the city's fire safety rating.

Among the things the city should pursue in the future, he said, is improved intergovernmental relationships with Waveland and Hancock County.

"There really is no excuse for three governments in this county," he said.

After giving his report, Franckiewicz presented outgoing Ward Three Councilman Charles Johnson with a certificate of appreciation for his work over the past four years.

Johnson lost his bid for a second term in a run-off election against Thomas Farve.

Franckiewicz then provided the council with a supply of Neco candy wafers, a treat they commonly shared during meetings.

Franckiewicz said he is looking at several job possibilities but has no definite prospects, yet.

"If I haven't heard anything by the end of the week, then I'll start worrying," he said.

Ammo Plant commander addresses press reports

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Lt. Col. Stephen Zakrewski, commander of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, took issue with recent news reports about the plant's product and costs.

The commander was addressing a group of community leaders on Tuesday at a John C. Stennis briefing.

The Colonial said, the story in The Sea Coast Echo about the M-483 artillery shells being obsolete was incorrect.

Zakrewski also reported a syndicated story reporting the cost of the shells made at the Mississippi plant at $1,100 each was also incorrect.

"If the author would have researched further he would have seen the cost at the Mississippi facility was $420 in 1988 and $417 each in 1989," he said.

"During the next 60 days there will be a team from the Army and the General Accounting Office checking over the facility," Zakrewski stated.

Zakrewski indicated that Congress and the Army had different ways of looking at the needs of the military.

There are four routes the Ammo Plant can go Zakrewski said.

—Continue to build the M-483's.

—Do third party work for a foreign country.

—Continue selling to the Army and also sell to a third party.

—Or lay-a-way, and this would be about in 1992 or 1993 and will cost about $13 million annually.

The commander said the plant's production is about 20,000 shells per month now and should reach 120,000 per month when completed in 1990.

The facility needs funds appropriated by the House Appropriations Committee to be directed to the facility by the Army to remain in operation.

The facility is owned by the government and operated by a private company, Mason Chamberlain, Inc.

The Ammo Plant costs $622 million and would cost much more to be replaced, the commander said.

Area elected officials have been contacting Congressional delegations and seeking help to keep the Ammo Plant in production.

The Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant has an employment of more than 1,700 of the 5,300 employees at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

Incumbent judges re-elected Tuesday

Former Hancock County Public Defender William Frisbie managed to beat all three of his opponents in Tuesday's Circuit Court election, but only in Hancock County. The three incumbent judges were the winners in the three-county district.

Kosta Vlahos, who has been in office longest, topped the Hancock, Harrison and Stone County district with an unofficial total of 7,976 votes, but placed after James Thomas in Hancock County. Thomas had 7,862 votes overall and 1,056 in Hancock County, where Vlahos followed closely with 1,020.

Terry, appointed in November 1987 to fill the late Vincent Sherry's post, trailed in Hancock County with 788 but had 7,354 votes overall.

Frisbie, a Republican, topped all three of the incumbents, who ran as Democrats, in Hancock County. He received 1,199 votes here, but brought up the rear district-wide with 4,225.

Chancery Court Judges William Stewart, Jason Floyd Jr.

and J.S. "Johnny" Morris were re-elected without opposition.

The Chancery Court elections were conducted under normal election procedures, but due to a Federal Court decision that delayed the Circuit Court elections by about two years, Vlahos, Thomas and Terry were re-elected under a special procedure allowing voters to choose one, two or three candidates.

The three with the most votes will take office as judges, but will have to run again next year in the regularly scheduled judicial election.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

We should receive the latest information on Highway 603 this morning from Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition.

Those of us who are early risers will be at the Wheel Inn Restaurant at 7:30 a.m. to hear Shows.

Following the Morning Edition, Shows is scheduled to meet with local officials at the intersection of Highway 603 and Longfellow Drive where the Highway Department agreed to save a grove of live oaks when the highway is widened.

We have been reading with interest about several Coastal communities who are dealing with tree ordinances.

I am hoping that tree laws or ordinances are soon addressed on a local level before it is too late.

Trees in our area already face the ravages of nature in hurricanes which destroy many, so we as a community have to try to save as many as we possibly can.

I have seen in the Bay-Waveland area over the years far too many live oaks being destroyed for the development of lands.

Hopefully a push will be made in the future to help protect our trees with proper regulations.

Over the years, many rocket engine tests have been made at the test site in Hancock County.

We have heard and felt some and have seen the clouds formed by the use of water as a coolant during the testing.

I have had several opportunities to witness a firing at the site but never took advantage of it until Tuesday of this week.

The test I viewed was a 'double' in time, according to Roy Estess, director of the Stennis Space Center as it lasted more than 1,000 seconds.

The power of the rockets which propel our astronauts to space is overwhelming.

It is hard to realize that on July 20 it will be 20 years since man first set foot on the moon from Apollo 11.

All the first and second stages of the Saturn V rocket for the Apollo manned lunar program were flight certified right here in Hancock County.

There is a Visitors Center at the Stennis Space Center which is open every day of the year except Christmas and much of America's space hardware can be viewed.

I know there are still many residents of the area who have not yet visited the Visitors Center at Stennis and I encourage them to do so.

Just think, yesterday was the first official day of summer and I can recall all the hot weather we have already had this year.

The recent showers have helped a bit in cooling things down and I hope the rest of this summer will be milder.

Main Street, Mississippi and economic development

At least three economic and semi-economic development programs will be implemented in Hancock County, and they will be implemented in business.

While involvement will cost a little time, it will be time well spent.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Heber Ladner—the personification of integrity

Two generations of Mississippians came along in the 50s, 60s and 70s not really knowing if the Secretary of State's office was appointive or elective because Heber Ladner was a fixture there.

Ladner's job, of course, was elective. But it could have been appointive because no one would ever seriously challenge him in the 32 years he was there.

Heber had the good sense to voluntarily step down in 1980 at age 77 when he no doubt could have been re-elected to another four-year term with no difficulty.

Last week in his passing at age 86, the political community in Mississippi was unanimous in acclaiming that it had lost one of its most honorable members of this century. The words on everyone's lips were "there goes an honest man."

In these days of increasingly questionable integrity among politicians, no higher praise can be given than to be called honest.

I was glad that I had a chance to spend a couple of hours with Heber not quite a year ago, reminiscing about old times, but talking about public integrity.

I shall never forget what Heber had to say about being a public official. "You can't be part honest and part dishonest," he said, "You've got to be one or the other."

What Heber let me know is that the opportunity was there if he had his hand out. That was particularly so in the latter 60s when some fast investment operators from up North came to the state with a pie-in-the-sky stock deal that Ladner could have let slide through in his capacity as the state's securities commissioner.

But even with the rather crude tools that the state gave him to operate with, Ladner broke up the scheme and sent the high-rollers packing.

For years, Ladner operated the Secretary of State's office on a very skimpy budget and with just a handful of employees because he was willing to take whatever the Legislature would dish out to him. Of course, this was before the age of computerization and high tech and the broader functions that the office now has.

The salary that the state paid Ladner during most of the years he was in that very important office is shameful. For years his salary was only $5,000 until it was finally raised to a mere $7,500. Only in the last few years he was in office was the pay put up to a decent figure.

Long before there was a state Open Records Law, Ladner believed in making the records of his office readily available to news reporters or others who wanted to look at them.

The door of his office was always open and he never felt that he was so important that he couldn't find time to talk to a reporter or anyone else who dropped by to see him.

There was one notable exception where Ladner was not willing to let a visitor come into his office and sit down. That was back in 1948 when Henry Wallace, the former vice-president who had joined some left-leaning movements, came by to put a racially mixed slate of presidential electors for his Progressive Party on the Mississippi ballot.

Ladner decided he wouldn't let Wallace inside his office, but he was going to accept the slate of presidential electors, even though some arch-conservative Mississippi polls were against him doing that. So Ladner met Wallace out in the hall outside his office and without a handshake he grimly took the list.

The state of Progressive Party electors, whom many Mississippians thought were about on par with the Communist party, did appear on the November, 1948 ballot.

There's no doubt that Ladner was a conservative, but he never harangued the race issue as did his political mentor, the late U.S. Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, his fellow Pear River Countian.

One thing that Ladner was proud of was that he had "ridden the LBJ Special" during the 1960 presidential campaign, when Lyndon Johnson came through the state on a special train stumping for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket.

For years afterwards, the white Citizens Council and old Dixiecrats made political targets of the Mississippi Democratic officials who rode on the LBJ Special, labelling them Kennedyites and causing some to be defeated.

But they couldn't even make a dent in Heber Ladner.

Vacationers urged to use seat belts

Vacation time for many Mississippians is fast approaching, and probably no one likes to think about highway accidents...but they do happen.

If an accident occurs, a fastened seat belt can make the difference between death or serious injuries and escaping virtually unharmed, according to the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs' Highway Safety Division (HSD).

"In some cases, using seat belts could actually keep minor accidents from becoming major," said HSD Director Billy Terrell. "A driver could be thrown from the vehicle's controls in a minor collision if the seat belt is not being used, causing the vehicle to go out of control and resulting in a more serious accident."

A sudden curve or fast turn could cause a driver to lose control, but a fastened seat belt would hold the driver in place behind the steering wheel where he or she can maintain control," Terrell noted.

"Many drivers who don't use seat belts think they can brace themselves to prevent injuries, not realizing the force involved," said Roy Thigpen, director of Federal-State Programs' Department of Criminal Justice Planning.

"In a collision, the vehicle begins to crush and slow down on impact, but individuals inside are moving forward at the same speed the vehicle was traveling. When the vehicle comes to a stop, passengers who are not wearing seat belts are still moving forward, slamming into the dashboard, windshield or other interior surfaces. With a fastened seat belt, they will stop before this happens."

Terrell added that "buckled seat belts are important at all speeds, and every family member, including babies, should use seat belts when traveling. Car seats for children, however, are safe and effective only when installed correctly and used. Because there are so many types available, parents should follow instructions carefully."

In an accident, a child held on an adults lap may be forced against the dashboard by the adult's weight and crushed to death.

"Fastening your seat belt is an easy and effective step to take before leaving your driveway," Terrell said. "We want everybody's vacation to be fun and not ruined by deaths or injuries on the highways."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Red Cross needs help in disaster assistance

To the Editor:

As you know, the American Red Cross exists as the agency for emergency preparedness. In past disasters, such as Hurricane Camille, millions of dollars were poured into this community to help our people in desperate need.

Whether it be for hurricanes or other unexpected disasters, we need to be prepared. Life and death hang in the balance of our readiness.

Preparation requires money, equipment and personnel trained to handle any situation and is everyone's responsibility. For this reason, we are asking you to help by sharing what you have so that we can do a good job of aiding those in distress.

Please contact us to discuss what you can do to help.

Right now, the Hancock County Chapter of the Red Cross is in the process of opening a new office to better meet the needs of the community—and the needs are great.

There is much in the way of office equipment, training equipment and supplies that will be of help to those who are volunteering their time and energies to provide this much needed service. The office may be reached at 467-7609.

Thank you for joining with us.

Respectfully,
Ms. Jeanne Garcia
Director, Hancock County

80,000 PEOPLE GAVE SOMETHING TO THE IRS THIS YEAR. AND THEY CAN'T WAIT TILL NEXT YEAR TO GIVE AGAIN.

They volunteered their skills to people who needed help doing their taxes. And it made them feel great. They weren't necessarily accountants. They were people, like you and your club or group members, who have a basic aptitude for math and a desire to help others.

You know, you can help people with what taxes them. And feel great, too.

To find out about the free IRS training program, call 1-800-424-1040 now.

Volunteer now. And you'll make someone's taxes less taxing later.

Movies, crafts to highlight summer reading next week

Crafts and movies will be the featured activities next week in the Hancock County Library System's 1989 Summer Reading Program.

A paper and yarn craft session will be from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at Kiln Library Tuesday, June 27 and at the Waveland Library on Thursday, June 29.

City-County Library will host a film festival on Wednesday, June 28 from 10 a.m. to noon and again from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

All children registered in the 1989 Summer Reading Program are eligible to participate in any of the activities scheduled at the three libraries, but must obtain a pass for each program.

"Children who have entered the program are urged to continue reading their books and keeping track of their reading records," said Prima Wusnack, library system director. "The deadline for turning in reading records is July 8, and we want all our participants to have reached their reading goal."

Further information on these or any other activities of the Hancock County Library System is available by calling the Bay St. Louis Library at 467-5282, the Kiln Library at 255-1724 or the Waveland Library at 467-9240.

BSLLT play combines comedy with mystery

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis Little Theatre offers a combination of comedy and mystery this week with "This Must Be the Place," which debuts tonight and continues through Saturday.

Curtain time is 8:15 for all three performances and tickets are available at the door.

A Tuesday night technical and dress rehearsal shows that the theatre group, in its first season after nearly going out of existence, showed that Bay St. Louis Little Theatre holds promise for the future.

While not up to top form yet, improvement shows as nine actors, mostly stage veterans, tackle a confusing script.

The farce takes place in the home of Bob Zachary, a portrait artist played by Clem Acker. Zachary is about to propose to April March, a psychiatrist portrayed by Darice Bowles, when unexpected developments invade his house and confuse his plans.

Acker plays the artist as just another regular guy who happens to be able to paint but has the normal insecurities and desires for a family and stabi-ty. He is particularly good during a drunk scene late in the play.

Bowles is a little less dimensional in her portrayal of a character given little more to do than psychoanalyze her boyfriend and hide from a mad rival suitor, but she plays well against Acker.

Kelly B. Friloux, as a debutante who also has a romantic interest in the artist, shines almost as brightly in her role as Gloria as the diamond necklace she misplaces to confuse the plot.

Carl Danna as Zachary's best buddy, Roger Clark, also plays well against Acker but finds a better foil in Joyce Ohman as Candy Cluster, the scantily dressed chorus girl he tries to impress by lying about his identity. Ohman and Danna together make up a bouncy bundle of energy as one perpetually drags the other in and out of doorways.

Turning in more of a deadpan performance is Dottie Overall as Gloria's aunt Pomona, a wealthy fashion designer who sinks dignifiedly across the stage while saying ridiculous things. Her "commercial" is a highlight of her performance and would make Gloria Vanderbilt cringe.

Pomona has hired a private detective, Wendell Zolotnik, to keep an eye on Gloria. Zolotnik is played enthusiastically by Ed Scanlan.

Scanlan and Michael Ruf, equally enthusiastic in playing April's mad suitor Julian, threaten to steal the scene when they meet in the artist's home.

Rounding out the cast is Alice Holmes, who comes and goes whenever she pleases as Gloria's aunt Minerva. Holmes is only on for a few minutes at the end of the play, but it's worth the wait.

Ed Craig directs the play while Sally Rodrigue serves as producer. Set construction and design crew included John Holmes, Hank Rodrigue, Danna, Ruf, Ohman, Alice Holmes and Scanlan. Don George is providing lights and make-up while Perry Berens supplies lights and sound and Alana Noonan plays the music.

Solutions offered for vegetable garden problems

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist

Problems, problems. Problems—there's no end to them when you have a vegetable garden: tomato blossoms fall off; squash get fuzzy and rot; plants suddenly wilt; okra won't from pods; melons don't taste good; sweet corn is wormy; peas are all vines, and grass is rapidly taken over!

Why? Why does it happen, and what can be done about it all? And the big question, why do we continue to bother?

To answer the last question first—we continue to bother because in spite of all the problems and disappointments the good outweighs the bad, and gardening is in our blood!

Gardeners have an almost undeniable need to plant, watch over and harvest. Most of us couldn't stop if we tried. Sure, we might be able to stop planting corn, peas or squash or maybe a vegetable garden altogether, but then we'd plant fruit or flowers.

going to be as large as a normal "flat land" garden.

Framing raised beds with boards, railroad ties or landscape timbers provides a place for sitting while working. This drains I visualize something like them standing on end, filled with soil and used for raised beds and planters.

They'd eliminate all need for bending and getting down. What a joy they would be to gardeners no longer physically able to grow a traditional garden but still with the urge to garden.

When you've had your hands in the soil gardening for 60 years or longer you shouldn't have to give it up "cold turkey" just because your knees or back say "No more!" A small raised bed garden has got to be better than no garden at all.

Now for the other questions. Tomato blossoms fall off because of shade, high temperatures or too high a level of soil fertility. Peas run to all vines because of high levels of nitrogen fertilizer.

Squash go fuzzy and rot on the ends because of high humidity and lack of air circulation. Remove the infected fruit from the garden, and remove some of the large leaves to admit more light and air.

Cantaloupe taste funny or flat because of a lack of sugar which could occur with cloudy weather, excess water during ripening and/or poor plant nutrition. Vegetable plants suddenly wilt because of either disease or drowning.

Plants infected with diseases such as fusarium wilt, southern stem blight, bacterial wilt and gummy stem blight all wilt at some point.

To keep earworms out of sweet corn requires repeated applications of a recommended insecticide spray or dust to the silks beginning when the silks first appear until they are no longer attractive to the egg-laying moths.

Grass in the garden should be easier to control this year than last year when it comes to using herbicides.

Poast, provides post-emergence control of grass in cantaloupes, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, peppers, squash, tomatoes and watermelons.

Treflan and Dacthal still are approved for pre-emergence control of grass on a number of

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Haven't you ever "baked" ice cream without melting it, and turned out a delicious dessert to boot? Well, all you have to do is "insulate" the ice cream from the oven's heat with a covering of airy meringue, and you've achieved that renowned hot and cold surprise dessert—Baked Alaska.

This concoction, so I was told many years ago, made its initial appearance at New York's elegant Delmonico's Restaurant in the 1850's, and was named in honor of the then-brand new territory of Alaska. And why so many cooks shy away from making this dish is a mystery to me, for it's as easy as making a pie!

I still chuckle at the memory of my two sons, long years ago, startled when they saw me putting the ice cream cake in its meringue overcoat into the oven. They ran to their Dad, urging him to "come quick, quick—Mother's burning up the ice cream!" They soon learned to enjoy Baked Alaska and other out-of-the-ordinary but easily assembled gourmet treats.

And, so easily assembled! All that you have to do is to start with a pound cake or sponge or other loaf cake, according to your preference. Cut a thick rectangular slice to fit your platter and the appetites of your family and or guests, and place it on a board topped with brown paper or foil, or other oven-proof tray or sort.

Meanwhile, make the meringue—recipe follows below. When this done, place the firm ice cream of your choice over the cake layer, not quite to the edges, cover quickly with the meringue, whirling it thicker than thick on the top and sides, so as to insulate the cake and ice cream.

Set the whole business in a hot oven (450 degrees) for a very very few minutes, just until the meringue is light golden brown, then slide the Baked Alaska onto the serving platter and serve at once. (I find it easier to pull very gently, the Alaska, brown paper or foil and all, onto the platter.)

For more specific measurements for the meringue:

5 egg whites
Dash (one-eighth tsp.) cream of tartar, same of salt
1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar

Beat the egg whites until frothy, then add the cream of tartar and salt, and continue whipping until stiff but not dry. Add the confectioner's sugar, a tablespoon or so at a time, whipping after each addition, and continuing to whip until the meringue stands in peaks. Spread on the cake-ice cream as directed above, and finish.

A variation for summertime freshness is:

GRAPEFRUIT ALASKA
Halve and section the grapefruit in quantity needed, hollowing out enough space for a scoop of vanilla ice cream, and cover with meringue, then bake at 450 to 500 degrees briefly, briefly until meringue is lightly browned, or broil for just that same sixty seconds or so.

Waveland Library hosts Hamiter still life exhibit

The Waveland Public Library is host to an exhibit of still life paintings by Louise D.

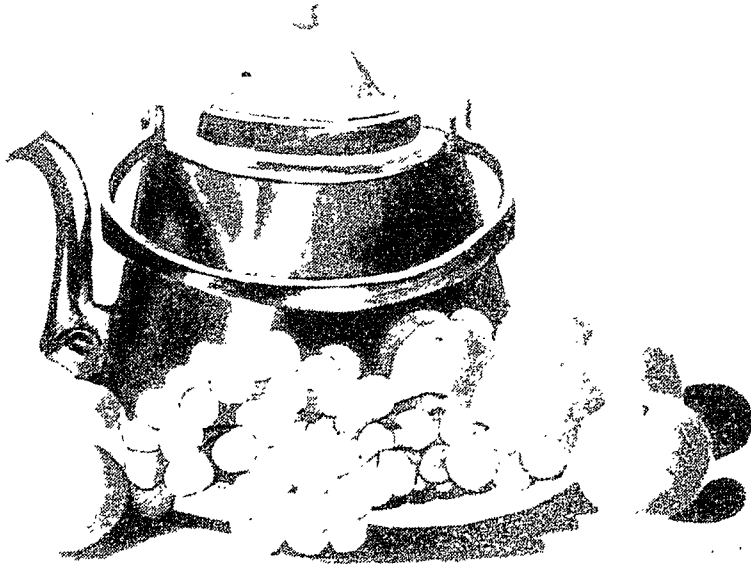

Hamiter. The exhibit is open to the public and will run through July 31.

The artist, a native of Maxton, N.C., married a South Carolinian and lived in Columbia, S.C. for 35 years. Since 1984, she has made her home in Bay St. Louis.

Hamiter finds that still life paintings present the special challenge of bringing strong light into the center of interest in the artwork while balancing the edges to give strong contrast between shape and form.

The greatest challenge in oil painting, says Hamiter, is keeping the colors pure and clean while developing a theme among all of the values. Oil paintings, says the artist, gives her a sense of satisfaction and accomplishment in developing her creative nature.

For the past three years she has been a student of Waveland artist Carl Baldenhofer. Her works are now being displayed in the Carolinas as well as the Gulf Coast.

Hushpuppies, gourmet pecans, muscadine jelly, smoked catfish pate' and fig preserves are just a few of Mississippi's specialty food items about to be introduced to the world.

The items, all products of Mississippi-based firms, will be exhibited at two international food and gift shows this summer.

Eight members of the Mississippi Specialty Foods Association have prepared booths and displays for the 35th Annual International Fancy Food and Confection Show, June 25 through 28 at the World Congress Center in Atlanta.

Another nine members of the association have purchased a permanent booth at the Dallas Market Center. They will debut their exhibits July 1 through 7 at the Dallas Christmas Gift Show. Both shows will draw thousands of potential customers each day.

The firms are working together to make their efforts pay off. Their objective is to attract customers and spread the news about the quality of Mississippi specialty products.

Indianola Pecan House Inc., one of the firms making plans for Atlanta, took part in last year's Fancy Food show in Chicago. Owner Wheeler Timbs said exhibiting their line of gourmet pecans and mixes at shows has several good benefits.

"We are getting orders and making contacts and getting exposure," he said. "Last year we got two or three big orders from the Fancy Food show and made lots of contacts."

Wheeler said having a group of Mississippi businesses exhibiting together is also good for the state.

"People come by and see our quality booths, talk with us, see our type products, and we change the negative mental image a lot of people have about our state," he said.

Timbs added that because of their firm's participation in shows, they now ship to customers as far away as the Virgin Islands, New England and California.

The Mississippi Specialty Foods Association was organized in 1986 to help entrepreneurs and small businesses develop and build successful businesses.

The association, assisted by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and the Food and Fiber Center of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, serves among other things as a sounding board for sharing business advice.

Timbs, a charter member of the association, said by banding together, Mississippi's specialty food producers have been able to purchase advertisements in national magazines, and do such things as coordinate efforts for large exhibitions.

Dixie LaBruyere, project technician with the Food and Fiber Center, said the association has also been able to purchase a mailing list of potential buyers.

"Becoming involved in the association is also a good way for new business owners to learn from the experiences of the group," LaBruyere said.

Mississippi Specialty Foods Association members exhibiting at the International Fancy Food and Confection Show in Atlanta include Indianola Pecan House Inc., Indianola; Bon Melange, Tupelo; Southern Touch, Meridian; The Mississippi Hushpuppy Company Inc., Brookhaven; Taylor Maid Foods, Jackson; The Peber Nodder Company, Jackson; De Beukelaer Corporation, Madison; and The Crown Restaurant and Antique Mall, Indianola.

Mississippi Specialty Foods Association members exhibiting in the Dallas Market Center include B & B Specialty Foods, D'Lo; Hayes Enterprises Inc., Pass Christian; Lilli's and C & W Specialty Foods, Leland; Lusco's, Greenwood; Southeastern Specialty Foods Corporation, Meridian; Taylor Maid Specialty Foods, Jackson; Critic's Choice, Corinth; The Winery Rushing, Merigold; and Pick of the Crop, Ruleville.

'Veronica's Delight' Creole seasonings to exhibit in Dallas

Vera Crandall
of 'Veronica's Delight'

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Riding the crest of 'Creole/Cajun' food popularity, Pass Christian seasoning maker Vera Crandall is taking her show on the road.

The owner-developer of 'Veronica's Delight' Creole seasoning will exhibit her product in the Dallas Market Center as a member of the Mississippi Specialty Foods Association.

Crandall works out of her Pass Christian home, while the spices are manufactured in Metairie. Her product has been on the market for three years.

A long-time cooking enthusiast, she began experimenting with combinations of spices and deferred to friends to select the winning formula. "Out of five choices, they all voted on number two, which is the same recipe I use today," she said.

Crandall has exhibited the product at the Mobile "Southern Living Cooking Show" and at a recent festival in Bay St. Louis.

Plans are in the works for a salt-free Creole seasoning, a Caribbean seasoning and Creole-seasoned pecans. A new product label will be available in six weeks.

The seasoning is named for Crandall—indirectly—who was told by an elderly Scotsman that she needed a "Christian name" and elongated "Vera" to "Veronica." Ironically, she found that Veronica is French for "herbs," and a marketing strategy was born.

Exhibiting at the International Fancy Food and Confection Show in Atlanta will be Bon Melange, a food company formerly based in Pass Christian and purchased by a Tupelo firm, Dacus Inc.

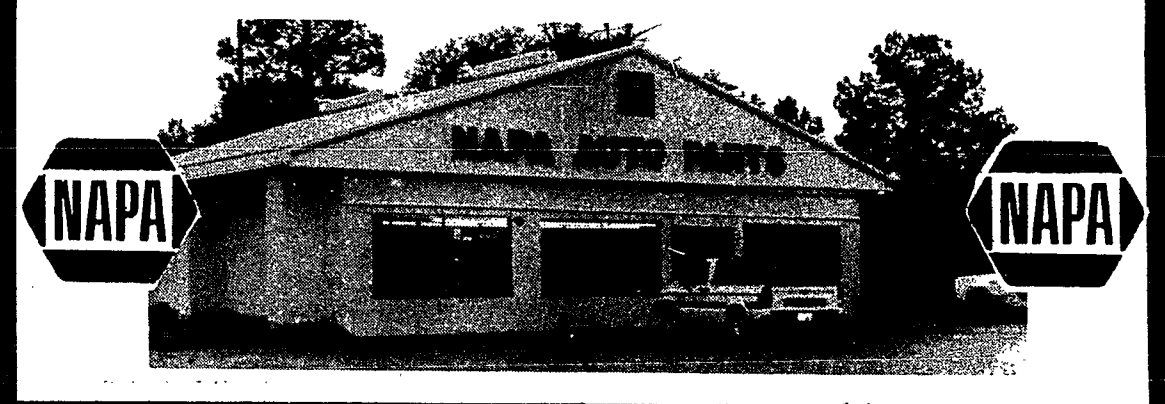

'Veronica's Delight' is available in Pass Christian at Hillyer House on East Scenic Drive and at The Village Store in Edgewater Village.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1989-1B

SECTION B

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Sports seasons used to be as well-defined as months on the calendar.

These days, we have basketball, traditionally a Spring sport, continuing into the summer; a local baseball league is already ending its season; and it feels as if the call to football practice is coming up any day now.

If you look beyond local sports and into the college or pro scene, even more seasons are melting into each other. It's my theory that this is possible through indoor facilities and adaptations of sports once played outdoors.

Think about it—when was the last time you saw a kid pass up an air-conditioned gym to play on an outdoor cement basketball court?

Some traditionalists object to the extension of sports seasons but I don't. I'm delighted that players and spectators alike have more opportunities to enjoy themselves.

The Bay Hoopsters will play the opening game today in the third annual Ocean Springs SAAU Basketball Tournament at the Ocean Springs High School gymnasium.

The Hoopsters will face Clarks Printing of Pascagoula at 2 p.m. We wish them good luck and hope to see them again later in the tournament, which continues Friday and Saturday.

Don't forget the Bay-Waveland Jaycees volleyball tournament on the beach at Waveland Sunday. Registration fee is $30 each and the event is open to mixed teams. Prizes include T-shirts for first place and caps for second place.

For information contact Mike Favre, 467-9776; Jimmy Ladner, 467-0761; or Clark Breland, 467-5931.

The Jaycees are also sponsoring its second annual Pitch, Hit and Run Contest Saturday at the Bay Senior High Baseball Field. Boys and girls ages nine to 15 may compete for the first and second place trophies that will be awarded in each division.

Registration, which is free, begins at 8 a.m. with the competition following at 9. Information is available from Frank Perniciaro, 467-5626; Mike Favre, 467-9776; Rick's Trophies, 467-3237; and Eddie Favre, 467-5907.

Waveland Little League will close its 1989 season Saturday with its annual Little League Fair at Elwood Bourgeois Memorial Park on Central Avenue.

A parade begins the event at 8:45 a.m., with baseball action to begin at 9:30 and continue all day.

The event will include music, game and food booths and rides for the smaller children. The public is invited.

Lis Lagarde at Tennis World in Diamondhead congratulates the winners of the congratulates the winners of last week's two adult round robin doubles tournaments.

Bruce Pennington and Fannie Holcomb, both of Diamondhead, won the Friday tournament. On Sunday, winners were Ray Badgett of Diamondhead, and because the winners are determined on points, there was a tie between Lambert Boyd of Bay St. Louis and Billy Holcomb of Diamondhead.

The tournaments are 9:30 a.m. Fridays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays, and you don't have to bring a partner to be able to play. Lagarde has more information at 255-2525, ext. 300.

Tennis World has also set a date for a free adult clinic for beginners, which will be offered Saturday at 9:30 a.m. The public is invited; you need not be a Diamondhead resident to participate. To register, call Lagarde at the number above.

We have a couple of local teams participating in the St. Martin AAU Girls Basketball Tournament at the St. Martin High School Gym Saturday, the Bay St. Louis Boosters and McDonald's Cleaners of Pass Christian. Games begin at noon with the championship game scheduled for 5 p.m.

The Bay American Legion Post 139 baseball team has four games coming up this week. They include away games Friday and Saturday against Heritage, Ga., and Riverdale, Ga., a double header at home against Biloxi Tuesday night (6 p.m.) and an away game against Ponchatoula, La., Friday.

I know the team has been on the road more than a set of tires lately, but get ready to cheer—after a break for the July 4 holiday, there's a three-game stint at home coming up!

Don't forget! The Sea Coast Echo can run sports and sports-related items for you in Time Out. To submit items either bring them by our office by Tuesday, preferably before noon, or call Dena Bisnette at 467-5474. You're also welcome to mail them in, but be sure you send them early enough that they'll arrive here by Tuesday.

Right now, we are particularly interested in obtaining scores and information on local summer sports programs. With several games each week, we know there are some folks out there who can't get to all of them but would enjoy reading about them.

Sun fun

Precautions make suntanning safer

We've all heard about the damaging effects of the sun's ultraviolet rays. Not only can it make you sunburned, it can also cause heat stress which can make you very sick. More serious cases can even be fatal.

But, regardless of all these warnings, some of us just can't resist spending a gorgeous day soaking in the sun.

So if you happen to be a sun-lover in the market for a good suntan, there are certain precautions you should take to help bronze your body without permanently damaging your skin.

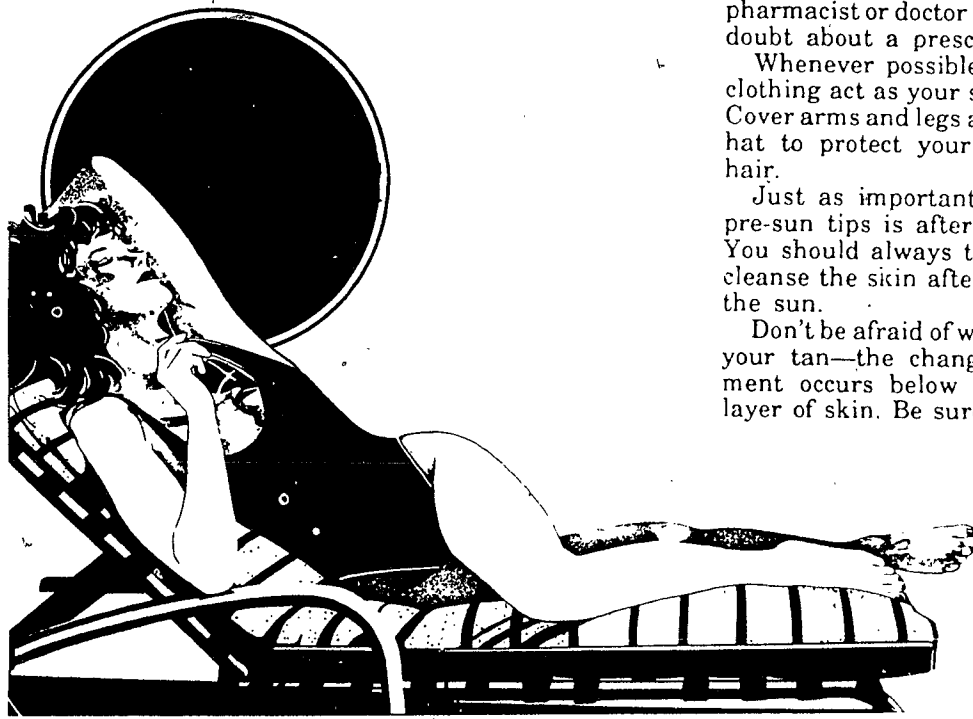

First of all, the safest time to catch rays is before 10 a.m. and never burn may safely use low SPF products, but people who burn easily or have fair skin should select high SPF products.

SPF ratings begin at two, which provides minimum protection, and go up to 15 or more, giving maximum protection.

An SPF from 8 to 14 is for those who burn easily, but gradually tan. Those who always burn and do not tan should look for products with at least a 15 or more SPF.

Also use maximum SPF products on extra-sensitive areas like your nose and earlobes. For your face, use a water-based after 2 p.m. Around noon time you should take shelter and actually avoid the sun. That's when the sun is directly overhead and your skin is more likely to take in damaging ultraviolet rays.

Spending a moderate amount of time in the sun is the key to sunbathing and well-planned protection.

When choosing suntanning products, look for SPF, sun protection factor ratings. The Food and Drug Administration developed this rating which is determined by dividing the time it takes the sun to redden skin while using the product by the amount of time without the product.

Those who tan quickly and suntan to avoid closing pores and always apply lip balm or moisturizer since lips tend to burn more easily than any other skin.

Remember, look before you leap. Old faithfuls like baby oil, mineral oil and cocoa butter may be inexpensive and appear to do the job of suntan products. Unfortunately, they only soften skin and provide no protection from the sun.

You should always reapply any suntanning protection product, even waterproof sunscreens, after swimming. Also, keep in mind before sunbathing that a few medicines can cause photosensitivity.

They make you more susceptible to the sun's ultraviolet rays, making sunburn more likely to occur. Simply ask your pharmacist or doctor if you're in doubt about a prescription.

Whenever possible, let your clothing act as your sunscreen. Cover arms and legs and wear a hat to protect your face and hair.

Just as important as these pre-sun tips is after-sun care. You should always thoroughly cleanse the skin after a day in the sun.

Don't be afraid of washing off your tan—the change in pigment occurs below the outer layer of skin. Be sure to mois-toms progress to dizziness, throbbing headache, nausea, vomiting, cramps, diarrhea, rapid heartbeat, chest pains, difficulty in breathing, mental changes, dry skin without perspiration and extreme weakness.

There are, however, ways to prevent heat stress before it progresses to this serious stage.

* Use air conditioning; if none is available, spend time in the coolest room in the house or in cool shopping malls, libraries or movie theaters.

* Turn on fans. They draw cool air into the house at night and circulate air during the day.

* Take cool baths or showers. Each removes extra body heat 25 times faster than cool air. Ice bags or wet towels also help.

* Wear loose-fitting, lightweight, light-colored clothing. Outdoors, wear a hat or carry an umbrella.

* Drink plenty of water; don't wait 'til you're thirsty.

* Stop physical activity in very hot weather.

* Avoid hot foods and heavy meals. They add heat to the body.

* Watch salt intake. Consult the doctor before taking salt tablets.

* Avoid alcohol. It leads to fast water loss and makes you less aware of possible danger signs.

There are ways to enjoy the summer sun without annoying sunburns damaging your skin and the serious effects of heat stress.

Prepare for the time you plan to spend in the sun and don't overdo it. A good tan isn't worth much if you make yourself sick in the process.

Summer heat demands special attention while fishing

Now that summer has arrived, bass fishermen can add one more problem to weekend outings.

That problem is heat and how it can affect a fisherman during a full day on the water. Anglers should take steps to protect themselves from sunburn and dehydration.

"I think one of the most important things a fisherman must do is learn to drink plenty of fluids when he's out in the sun all day," explains Tom Mann Jr., a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and a former guide on Georgia's Lake Lanier.

"Anyone who fishes a lot during the summer should learn to drink something before he gets thirsty. This is especially critical in some regions of the west and southwest where humidity is very low and you don't realize you're dehydrating."

"I believe cool water is the best thing to drink, too, not canned or bottled drinks, and certainly not alcohol."

Another problem summer

anglers must contend with is sunburn, says Mann. He recommends fishermen wear lighter colored clothing because it reflects the heat better and thus will be cooler. Anglers with light complexions should wear long trousers and long-sleeve shirts.

"Don't try to get a suntan all at once on your first trip," explains the Evinrude pro. "If you want to, wear shorts under the trousers so you can take the sun at intervals during several trips."

Mann also strongly recommends anglers use a sun block to help prevent sunburn on their hands, face, neck and ears.

"Use the highest category of sun block you can," he says, "and use it several times a day, particularly if you have a light complexion and burn easily."

"Sunburn is a lot like dehydration in that you often don't realize how quick it's happening."

Wearing caps and sunglasses are also important to summer bass fishermen, Mann believes. The cap helps shade your face from the sun, while the sunglasses protect your eyes.

"Don't wear a cap in which the underside of the bill is white," notes Mann, "because it will reflect the sun right back down on your face. Make certain your cap has a dark bill."

"Wear a quality pair of sunglasses, too," he adds. "Pick a pair from one of the well-known manufacturers and take care of them. Good sunglasses are expensive, but bad glasses can harm your vision, so the price is worth it."

Another trip to keeping cool, says Mann, is putting a wet handkerchief under your cap to keep your head cool, and wearing a wet handkerchief or bandana around your neck.

Johnson and Evinrude Outboards offer an exclusive power steering system on some V-6 outboard motors. Power steering is an optional accessory on the loop-charged Evinrude XP 200 and Johnson GT 200 motors for bass boats.

The OMC power steering is an automotive-type system that uses a belt driven pump to circulate hydraulic oil to an assist cylinder mounted on the motor's swivel bracket.

TOP GOLFER—St. Stanislaus student Bo Miller was named the "Mr. Rock-A-Bass" award and participated in the State Golf Tournament.

Hancock's Favre is USM scholar-athlete

University of Southern Mississippi athletes achieved a record point average of 3.5 in the recently completed semester, and 19 other athletes received academic honors.

Among the athletes with 10 or more points in the semester are: Steve Favre, who was named to the All-American team for achieving a 3.5 or better.

Favre's last scholars list includes: Steve Favre (3.82), Vince Lobello (3.81), Tony Watts (3.75), Steve Ellis (3.68), James Singleton (3.56), Mike Callahan (3.33), Brett Favre (3.31), Flint Minshew (3.25), Lance Nations (3.25), Dan Buchanan (3.23), Charles Brown (3.20), Craig Thompson (3.20), and Chris Lee (3.00).

"We're proud of every one of our student athletes," said Golden Eagle athletic director Bill McLellan. "They know the value of education as well as athletics, and they strive to excel in both. For most, the time spent participating in athletics at USM is relatively short, but their education will obviously be important to them for the rest of their lives."

Included on the list of scholar athletes for the spring semester are football players: Byrd and Ryals, Mark McLeod (3.82), Vince Lobello (3.81), Tony Watts (3.75), Steve Ellis (3.68), James Singleton (3.56), Mike Callahan (3.33), Brett Favre (3.31), Flint Minshew (3.25), Lance Nations (3.25), Dan Buchanan (3.23), Charles Brown (3.20), Craig Thompson (3.20), and Chris Lee (3.00).

MSU's Rishew studies golf course feasibility for Calhoun investors

Calhoun County's major business center is the future site of a new golf course, according to a study by MSU Lakeville.

The study, titled "Feasibility Study for a New Golf Course in Calhoun County, Mississippi," was conducted by MSU Lakeville's Rishew.

"The study was extremely well received by the students," Rishew said. "Each was fascinated by the other's field of study and their input into the project."

Cook added that the student study showed a golf course near Bruce was feasible and that the entrepreneurs can pursue the project with a golf architect in private practice.

"We believe good golf course architecture should be available for golf courses in small communities anywhere," Perry pointed out, adding, "The small courses are more difficult to design than the larger ones with more generous budgets. That's the real world."

Perry will attend Harvard University this summer to participate in a special session in golf course architecture conducted by two past presidents of the American Society of Golf Course Architects.

the project and Cook said they hope to continue it annually.

The Best of Health

Meet just a few of THE PHYSICIANS BUREAU family of doctors. We have joined together family doctors and specialists from nearly every medical field to give our community the best of health.

So, if you are new to the Gulf Coast area, need a physician or want a second opinion, call THE PHYSICIANS BUREAU. We can help you select a physician who will get to know you and your family as individuals, who will listen with respect, who informs and advises with care and understanding and who is not only your doctor but your friend.

When you call THE PHYSICIANS BUREAU, a registered nurse will help you find the physician who will be just right for you and your family. She can put you in touch with specialists and family physicians and give you convenient locations, insurance or health plan acceptance and any other requirements you may have.

THE PHYSICIANS BUREAU representative, assisted by a computer, can even make your first appointment for you and confirm it while you are on the line.

Because you want the best of health, call THE PHYSICIANS BUREAU. Let us introduce you to a physician of your choice.

Crab Festival to kick off June 30

The fifth annual Fourth of July Crab Festival, set for June 30-July 2 in Bay St. Louis will kick off the holiday weekend with food, fireworks, crafts and family entertainment. The festival will begin at 5 p.m. on Friday and open at noon on Saturday and Sunday.

The festival, one of the most popular summertime events on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, offers delicious seafood dishes that have become its trademark. Other dishes will also be available.

Approximately 80 craft booths will be set up on the grounds, and a giant beachfront fireworks display will highlight the activities.

Continuous live entertainment is scheduled throughout the three-day fest. Among the entertainers will be Bo and Dee, Keith Hoda and the Country Sounds, Craig Chamberlain, Speedo and the Rocket 88s, Huey and Company, and the Pat Murphy Band.

The annual festival is held at the west end of the Bay St. Louis bridge on U.S. Hwy. 90.

Epilepsy Foundation to host free summer camp

The Epilepsy Foundation of Mississippi is conducting a free camp for children with epilepsy from July 30 through Aug. 5 at the Warren A. Hood Campgrounds near Hazlehurst.

This activity, open to boys and girls between the ages of nine and 18, is co-sponsored by the Andrew Jackson Council of the Boy Scouts of America and the University of Mississippi Medical Center Department of Pediatric Neurology. Instruction and counseling are provided by adult scouting officials and medical care by UMC. Persons wishing more information on this camping experience or any other public service offered by the Epilepsy Foundation, are asked to contact the state office at 362-2761 in Jackson, or (800) 898-0291.

Compensation offered to local tree growers who suffered losses

Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service reminds tree producers that sign up for the tree assistance program ends June 30.

Authorized by the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988, TAP provides cost-share payments to commercial tree producers who experienced significant losses of tree seedlings planted during 1987 or 1988 because of the 1988 drought.

"We are administering this program in cooperation with the Forest Service, Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service and State Forestry agencies," Gennin said.

TAP provides partial compensation to eligible growers of fruit trees, nut trees, Christmas trees grown for harvest by cutting, trees planted for wood, syrup and other commercial purposes.

Because disaster assistance has never been offered to many of these growers before, Gennin said some of those who may be eligible may not be aware of the program, or do not know where to inquire about the program.

He said commercial tree producers who lost more than 35 percent of an individual stand of trees after adjusting the stand for normal mortality should visit the county ASCS office to find out more about TAP and their eligibility for this assistance. Other restrictions also apply.

"This inquiry should be made before new seedlings are planted in the damaged stand areas so the mortality can be accurately assessed," the ASC official said.

The grower can pick and pack for the consumer can pick for himself or herself. More than stores can handle," Braswell said.

The berries' production is due in part to the ease of cultivation. "They aren't a finicky plant. They don't need a lot of water, but they have a shallow root system so they don't have a lot of competition from weeds," says Helene Giles, a local real estate agent with Coldwell Banker. Pick-your-own farms are popular in the County.

Blueberries

Mississippi's fruit of the future?

BY D.C. HARVILL

A horticulture student at the University of Southern Mississippi in the early eighties was often heard defending his graduate project with the exclamation, "Blueberries—the fruit of the future."

The student's axiomatic defense was often met with outbursts of laughter from his dorm-mates, but now, nearly ten years later, he may finally have the last laugh—his insistent vision of the minuscule fruit's destiny seems to have been vindicated.

Less than 100 acres in the state were dedicated to blueberry production in 1980. Today that steadily growing figure stands at nearly 1,000 acres. And south Mississippi is leading the way into the industry's future.

According to John Braswell, a Mississippi State University horticultural extension agent and secretary of the Mississippi-Louisiana Blueberry Growers Association, a healthy blueberry market has existed in the north, where the fruit has been popular for years.

"Most people here didn't know what blueberries were five years ago, but now the market has been developed," Braswell said.

Now that south Mississippians have developed a taste for the indigo-colored fruit, a new institution has sprung up in the piney woods countryside—the pick-your-own blueberry farm.

"Pick-your-own is good for both the grower and the consumer. The grower doesn't have to pick and pack them and the consumer can pick them cheaper than stores can buy them wholesale," Braswell said.

The berries' popularity as a cash crop is due in part to their ease of cultivation.

"They aren't a complicated plant. They don't like good soil, but they have a shallow root system so they don't like competition from weeds," said Helene Giles, a Bay St. Louis real estate agent who operates a pick-your-own farm in Harrison County.

Because they prefer sandy, well-drained soil, the plants require lots of water—as much as a gallon per plant each day, Giles said.

According to Braswell, blueberries are especially suited to this area because the varieties being grown were developed from the rabbit-eye blueberries, also known as huckleberries, that are native to the south Mississippi woods.

When mature, the bushes, which may grow 10 to 12 feet tall, produce 15 to 20 pounds of fruit each. They do not reach full maturity, however, until their sixth or seventh year, Giles said.

The commercial varieties have been bred to produce bigger, sweeter fruit, while retaining their natural resistance to insects and disease.

Because of this natural resistance, most growers find it unnecessary to use chemical pesticides on their plants. But many of them do still use herbicides to eliminate weeds, Braswell said.

Giles, however, has gone one step further and completely eliminated both herbicides and pesticides from her operation—growing her berries organically.

Where others spray, Giles combats weeds by mulching liberally with oak leaves and pulling them by hand.

Mulching is a good idea since it helps conserve moisture around the plants, Braswell said.

The only commercial product Giles uses on her plants is a non-toxic, organic soil conditioner, Basic-H, which, interestingly, is also marketed as a detergent.

While her method is more labor intensive, Giles thinks it is actually easier and certainly less detrimental to the environment and those who eat the berries.

"When I first got into it, I went to a seminar where they told us we had to apply this chemical at a certain time and another one at a certain time. It was more than my brain could deal with. I bought a weed killer anyway. When I got home and read the back label, I could not believe all the things in it. I've never used it; I still have it stored in the barn," Giles said.

Now Giles just adds Basic-H to her irrigation system.

Pick-your-own operations may be the most publicly visible segment of the industry, but there are other farms growing berries exclusively for sale on the wholesale market.

A blueberry marketing station operated in Purvis by the growers association ships to an expanding market throughout the South.

"The market has been really strong in Texas; the majority of the berries sold this year have gone to Texas," Braswell said.

Giles entered the business the way many growers seem to; they test the waters with a few plants and become hooked.

"I got into it mainly for myself, then some friends told me I should put in some more plants. After the first year, I decided to get into it commercially," she said.

Giles now has 650 plants, mainly immature bushes in their first year of production. She intends to plant an additional 400 bushes in December.

Ironically, South Mississippi's emergence as a blueberry capital is the result of a great natural disaster and the consequent demise of another agricultural crop that was touted as an economic boon to the area.

In the late sixties, hundreds of acres in the state's southern counties were planted in tung trees, imported from Asia, the nuts of which were used in the manufacture of furniture finishing products. Hurricane Camille in 1969, however, devastated the budding industry and it never recovered.

The Mississippi State University Agricultural Experiment Station in Poplarville had been the center of the tung industry, but after that crop's sudden demise, the station turned its attention to other ventures and began experimenting with blueberries.

As a result of that experimentation, the station is once again the center of a thriving agricultural trend—one that, since it has evolved from a hardy, native plant, may be longer lived than the failed, exotic-based tung industry.

"I think it's going to be a healthy industry," Braswell said.

BLUEBERRY CAKE

Heat oven 375°

1 stick butter or oleo
2/3 cup sugar plus 1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
2 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 1/4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
3/4 cup milk
2 cups blueberries
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
Generously grease 2x2x12" baking pan.
Beat together 4 Tbsp. of butter with 2/3 cups sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and mix well.
Sift together 2 cups flour, baking powder and salt. Add to mixture alternately with milk, ending with flour mixture and beating after each addition. Gently stir in blueberries. Spoon batter into prepared pan.
Combine remaining 4 Tbsp. butter and 1/2 cup sugar in small bowl. Add 1/3 cup flour, cinnamon and nutmeg. Mix well. Sprinkle over top of batter and bake for about 30 minutes. Cut into squares.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

Heat oven 350°

1/2 cup butter or oleo
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour (1 cup white and 1 cup wheat)
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups blueberries
1 Tbsp. sugar mixed with 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg or ground cinnamon
Grease 12-14 regular muffin cups, including the area between each cup or use foil baking cups.
Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Combine flour, salt, baking powder and add alternately to creamed mixture with milk and vanilla. Crush 1/2 cup of berries and stir in; fold in remaining berries.

Scoop batter into muffin cups. Sprinkle tops with nutmeg or cinnamon sugar.

Bake 30 minutes or until golden brown. Let muffins cool at least 30 minutes in the pan before removing.

BLUEBERRY-BANANA PIE

2 baked pie shells
4 cups blueberries
3 bananas
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
4 Tbsp. cornstarch
3 oz. Philadelphia Cream Cheese, softened
Saute 1 cup berries and 2/3 cups water for 3 min. Blend sugar, cornstarch and remaining water and add to cooked mixture. Saute one min. stirring constantly and let cool.

Slice bananas and put on bottom of baked and cooled pie shells. Spread softened cream cheese over bananas—save 1/2 cup of the best berries—put remaining berries in pie shell and then cover with cooked mixture and garnish with 1/2 cup best berries. Let chill about two hours.

Helene Giles, right, weighs a pale of berries picked by Mrs. Jack Williams of Diamondhead.

To select and freeze berries

Select plump, full berries with a light gray-blue color. Any hint of red indicates the berry is not fully ripe and has not reached its full flavor potential. Do not wash fresh berries until ready to use. Freeze without washing. Washing blueberries before freezing will toughen the skins. Unwashed berries will freeze individually and can be easily poured from containers in desired amounts. Rinse frozen berries in cold water just before using.

BLUEBERRY BUTTER

1 pint fresh blueberries or 10 oz. frozen, drained well
1/2 lb. unsalted butter
1 cup powdered sugar (if using frozen berries, use 1/2 cup sugar)
Put ingredients in blender in order given. Blend until smooth and creamy—if curdles, keep blending until smooth. Chill. Makes 2 1/2 cups. Serve with toast, biscuits, pancakes and waffles—also angel food cake and ice cream.

BLUEBERRY DIET SALAD (Diabetic)

2 cups blueberries, fresh
2 apples, diced
1 small can unsweetened pineapple
1/2 cup pecans cut small
1/2 cup diet mayonnaise
Mix by tossing together. Serve on lettuce leaf. Garnish with whole blueberries.

BLUEBERRY SALAD

2 3-oz. pkgs. blackberry Jello
2 cups boiling water
1 15-oz. can blueberries, drained or 4 cups fresh blueberries, preferred
1 8-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 pint sour cream
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Dissolve Jello in boiling water. Add fresh blueberries and pineapple; measure liquid. Add enough water to make 1 cup—add to Jello. Stir in blueberries and pineapple. Pour in 2-quart flat pan and refrigerate until set. Combine sugar, sour cream, cream cheese and vanilla. Spread over Jello layer; sprinkle pecans on top.

Country Kitchen Recipes

CHEESE CAKE

1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup margarine
1/4 cup sugar
Grease sides and bottom of round pan. Pack crust mixture in bottom and sprinkle around sides. Bake 7 minutes in a 350° oven. Cool.

Filling

1 lb. cream cheese, softened
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup sugar
Mix well until no lumps are left. Pour into baked graham cracker crust. Bake 20 minutes in 350° oven. Cool for 15 minutes. Pour following topping over cake.
1 pint sour cream
3/4 tsp. vanilla
1/4 cup sugar
Mix well on high speed, about 10 minutes. Spoon on cake, around sides first, then on center of cake. Bake 10 minutes at 350°. Refrigerate or freeze.

Topping

2 cups blueberries
1 cup sugar
1 heaping tablespoon cornstarch
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
Microwave on high 8 or 9 minutes. Stir every 2 or 3 minutes until thick. Cool and spread on top. (1 15-oz. canned pie filling or 2 cups pie filling may be used instead.)

BLUEBERRY PIE (Filling)

4 cups fresh or frozen blueberries
1/4 cup cold water
5 Tbsp. all purpose flour
pinch salt
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
Mix together 1/4 cup cold water, flour, salt and make a paste. Mix one cup of blueberries and sugar with 1/2 cup of water. Bring to a boil—when boiling add flour paste and stir until it thickens. Let cool. Add remaining berries. Pour into 9" shell and refrigerate.

High-tech classroom at MSU becomes reality through Seal's gift

Mississippi State University Business students can now talk with their professors about real-world economic problems simply by pressing a button.

May 12 marked the formal opening of a state-of-the-art electronic classroom at Mississippi State's College of Business and Industry.

The classroom, which features 15 microcomputers linked to a instructor's computer, gives students an opportunity to learn in a business-like environment, according to Dean Dennis Leyden.

"Most corporations are networked together," said Leyden. "This classroom is an instructional tool in which students can work with real world data and develop their analytical skills."

Dr. Rodney Pearson, an assistant professor of business information systems who helped develop the classroom, explained that it is also linked to approximately 150 other microcomputers in the college.

"This is one of the largest local area networks in the world," he said.

The electronic classroom was made possible through a gift from Leo Seal Jr., a 1949 Mississippi State alumnus who is president and chief executive officer of the Hancock Banking System in Gulfport.

Seal had a chance to see the classroom in operation for the first time recently. He called it "magnificent."

Mississippi State professors and students share Seal's enthusiasm for the classroom. They have been using the computerized facility since March.

Dr. Dorla Evans, an assistant professor of finance, said that the classroom helps students understand complex business problems.

"In this classroom, we can see things all at once. We're all working on the same problems together," she said. "It helps them to conceptually visualize processes, and that speeds up learning."

Leyden explained that the classroom will enhance the earning potential of Mississippi State graduates as well as their

Annunciation CYO supports Saltillo Mission with fast

Annunciation Catholic Youth Organization held a two-day "hunger-thon" Saturday, May 13 and Sunday, May 14.

Nineteen teenagers participated by gathering pledges from family, friends and neighbors. The pledges were based on the hours the teens went without food.

The proceeds will go to the Saltillo, Mexico mission which several of the teenagers will attend this summer. The hunger-thon began at 10 a.m. Saturday and ended after the 10 a.m. Mother's Day Mass Sunday. During the sign of peace the teenagers presented their mothers with carnations.

CYO members participating were Gordon Herron, Joey Breau, Rick Haas, Otis DeReyna, Bonnie Smith, Jeff Farve, Shannon York, Heath Necaice, Stacey Eve, Amy Pucheu, Robin Bennett, Mary Beth Liuzza, Cindy Minnaert, Lea Jones, Greg DeReyna, Ginger Ladner, Tina Hoffman, Radley Ladner and Sandy Deschamp.

Lynn Necaice is CYO director assisted by Leslie Talley and is director of religious education.

Stephens named Carrier scholar

Bryan Stephens of Ocean Springs is among seven students chosen statewide as 1989 recipients of Robert M. Carrier

BRYAN STEPHENS

Scholarships at University of Mississippi.

Stephens is the son of Barry and Dona (Wiggins) Stephens, formerly of Bay St. Louis. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stephens of Bay St. Louis and Jane Laurence, formerly of Bay St. Louis.

Stephens is senior class president at St. Martin High School. He was named a state top-20 Star Student and is listed in Outstanding High School students and Who's Who Among American High School Students.

He placed first in state chemistry competitions at the University of Southern Mississippi and Mississippi College.

Stephens is a member of the St. Martin High Hall of Fame and was on two state soccer championship squads as well as the 1987 Babe Ruth state championship baseball team.

Favre attains Eagle rank

Jason Favre, 16-year-old son of Gabe and Elaine Favre of Richardson, Texas, recently attained the rank of Eagle Scout.

Favre is a sophomore at J. J. Pearce High School in Richardson. He has been in Boy Scouts for five years. While in Cub Scouts, Favre earned the Arrow of Light Award.

In the Boy Scouts he has earned all 12 skills awards and 39 merit badges. As a leader of Troop 317, Favre had held leadership positions of historian, chaplain aide, patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader and senior patrol leader.

For his Eagle service project, Favre planned and supervised the removal, stripping, sanding and refinishing of classroom doors at a local elementary

Favre is the grandson of Lydia Monti Favre of Bay St. Louis and the late A. G. Favre Jr. and Herman Yarborough of Waveland and the late Isabel Yarborough.
